

The Insight Data Fabricator and Installer Market Report

The Insight Fabricator and Installer Report exists to provide a clear and concise snapshot of window, door and conservatory companies in England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland. The conclusions are based on data collected by the Insight Research team during telephone research calls made to over 14,000 companies on the Insight database.

Elements of the report are supplemented by financial information taken from the latest publicly available set of company accounts, provided to us by a credit reference agency.

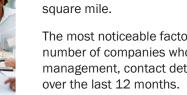

As of July 2012 the database consisted of 14,293 window, door and conservatory fabricators and installers.

This report also includes The Insight 50, which highlights the 25 largest PVC-U fabricators by turnover and the 25 strongest by net worth.

Snapshot of the Industry

Below is a UK wide representation of the UK Fenestration industry consisting of fabricators and installers of windows, doors and conservatories. The East Midland region has the largest number of companies, but the South East has the largest number of companies per

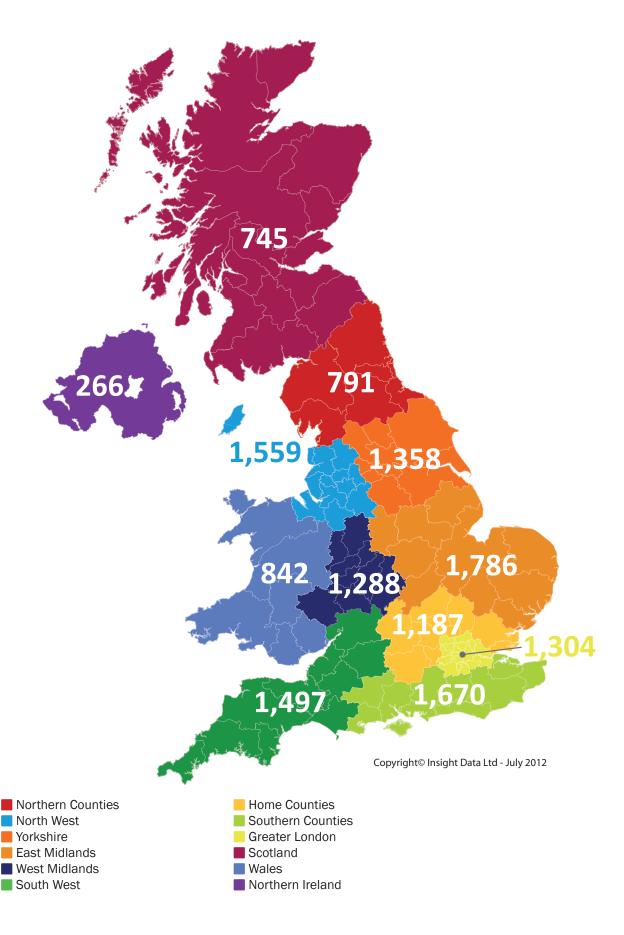

The most noticeable factor on the database is the rate of change. The number of companies who have changed details such as address, senior management, contact details, products or operations has accelerated

In addition to the rate of change, there is an average of 50 companies per month being removed from the database (retired, ceased trading, liquidation), while approximately 60 new companies per month are being added.

Fabricators & Installers by Region

Fabricators

The number of companies who manufacture windows and doors (all materials) has dropped from 4,560 to 4,209 (7.7%) in the last 12 months, with PVC-U seeing the greatest drop. However this headline figure masks variations in material types, with the number of aluminium fabricators actually rising, particularly among PVC-U fabricators who are introducing aluminium as a second material.

The drop in PVC-U/aluminium conservatory roof fabricators has dropped significantly over the last year from 381 to 322 (15.5%).

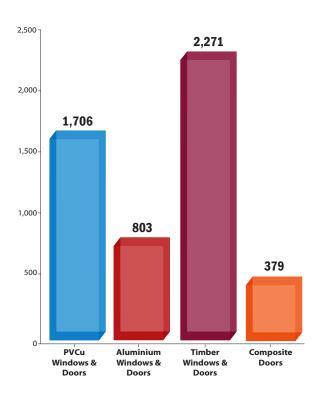

Composite doors continue to be a growth market with the number of fabricators manufacturing this product (full fabrication or using pre-fabricated slabs) increasing from 354 to 379.

There are more timber window and door fabricators than PVC-U or aluminium fabricators. However, these companies tend to be smaller, with the majority of timber fabricators being joinery shops producing bespoke products. There are exceptions, such as Jeld-Wen, who manufacture large volumes with a UK recorded turnover in excess of £100 million.

The chart (right) shows the split between materials. There are 4,209 fabricators manufacturing windows and doors, however many companies manufacture more than one material, hence the figures below appear larger when added together.

UK Window and Door Fabricators

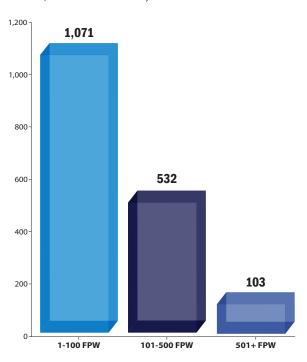

Window/Door fabricators (all materials) by region

East Midlands currently has the greatest number of window and door fabricators with Northern Ireland having the least.

PVC-U Window/Door Fabricators

The number of PVC-U fabricators continues to decline year-on-year. Smaller companies in particular are struggling in the trade and commercial sector, while larger fabricators are gaining economies of scale. The chart below shows the number of current fabricators (July 2012) grouped by volume (1 to 100 frames per week, 101 to 500, and 501 or more).

Installers

Installers are companies who install windows, doors or conservatories. There are 12,127 installers active in the UK, of which 3,375 also fabricate products. The rest buy-in products from a fabricator.

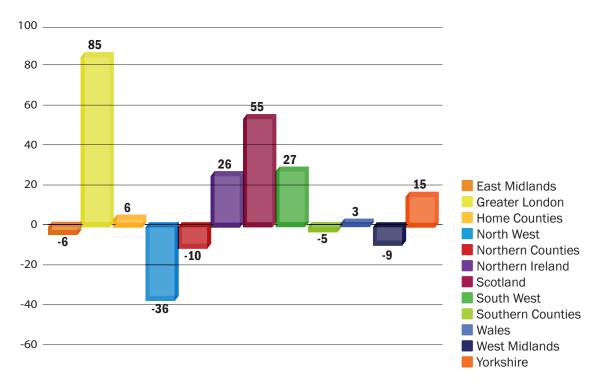

In addition to the 12,127 installers identified in this report, there are a large number of businesses who install windows/doors but are not considered 'double glazing companies' by Insight Data. These businesses include house-builders, main contractors, developers, and a growing number of small builders/local tradesmen active in the building and home improvement sector.

The number of installers has remained stable, with a marginal increase of 1% over the last 12 months. Many installers are now diversifying and offering additional home improvement products such as garage conversions, kitchens, solar and driveways.

Regional developments

The graph below shows the net increase or decrease in window and door installers across the UK, with Greater London seeing the greatest increase and the North West seeing the largest drop in the number of installers.

Net movement of installers regionally across the UK

The Insight Report provides a snapshot of the industry. It is not designed as an in-depth analysis or forecast of volumes.

However, several trends are emerging from the Insight database.

As indicated in the introduction, the rate of change within the industry is increasing; in fact over 1.200 changes are now recorded every month by the Insight research team. Over a six month period 50% of the companies on the database have experienced some change within the business.

What is clear from the Insight research is the increase in niche products, particularly bi-folding doors, composite doors and vertical sliding sash windows.

Fabricators

With a decrease in the number of companies fabricating, and 65% of PVC-U fabricators manufacturing 100 frames per week or less, there is a risk that many will cease PVC-U manufacture altogether.

Aluminium is having a revival, and not just in the commercial sector. The number of domestic/retail installers now offering this alongside PVC-U has increased sharply. This translates into the number of companies manufacturing aluminium, which is increasing. PVC-U fabricators are now offering aluminium to improve revenue and margins, but with the number of companies who manufacture and install aluminium snowballing, the risk is that further competition will drive down prices and potentially erode PVC-U sales.

Installers

The number of installers has remained fairly static, although there is a clear trend towards diversification. Installers are now offering a much wider range of home improvement products.

Installers face a threat from other sectors. There is a growing number of general home improvement companies and local builders who are now actively promoting windows and doors in addition to their traditional product lines.

In fact, double glazing installers and many local builders are converging in what we call 'morphing'. Double glazing companies are offering garage conversions; kitchen companies are offering windows and doors. Thus the number of companies selling windows and doors will increase in the years ahead.

Innovation

After several years without major product development, the industry is responding to continued difficult trading by investing in Research and Development. Several innovative window and door products have emerged and this looks set to continue.

Insight Top 50 PVC-U Fabricators

The Insight 50 is focused on PVC-U fabricators in the UK. The report assesses information collated from the Insight fabricator and installer database cross-referenced with financial data provided by a credit reference agency.

The report shows the top 25 fabricators by turnover, and the top 25 fabricators by net worth. Where the company has not disclosed sufficient financial information on their annual returns, they are excluded from the report.

The financial data is the publicly available company accounts that represent the latest filed records available to Insight Data as of 30th August 2012.

Market Sectors

Turnover is not necessarily an indication of performance; a domestic/retail fabricator will have a significantly higher turnover to a trade fabricator producing the same volume of frames.

In addition, some companies offer a wider range of products and services but a financial breakdown of these is not available.

There is no clear market sector that is most profitable; the report demonstrates a spread of companies across retail, trade, commercial and new-build markets.

Note: The figures below identify turnover and net worth, but neither reflect a company's profitability.
